It will be a hard fought proposition as the better class of people are very much opposed to it and think it is had enough as it is and would be much worse if it was sold in our midst,

-Mrs. Mattie Ford died at her home last Saturday evening at 6 o'rlock, of consumption. She was in her 40th year and had been a member of the Christian church for about 15 years. Her funeral took place at the Christian church on Sunday at 2 o'clock, Eld. S. G. Sutton preaching the sermon, alter which she was buried in the new cemetery across the river. Mrs. Ford was a sister-in-law of Dr. L. Sprowle, who formerly lived in Lincoln county.

-Last Monday morning about 8 o'clock a murder of the foulest character was committed near Kensee Station, da Bryaut, a daughter of Mr. Frank Bryant, was outraged and murdered. Her throat was cut from ear to ear and her brains had been mashed out with a stone. She came to Sexton, the first station this side of Kensec, with her uncle, Joel Bryant, with whom she lived. He took the train to come to Williamsburg and she walked on toward Kensee alone where she was going to stay a few days with some friend. About 9 o'clock her body was found in a culvert, as described above, still warm. went and arrested three men, but the evidence all tends to show that they are identify the man if she can see him.

PRETTY BOOK COVER. This is recommended for papered covered books or magazines only, the blotting paper of which it is composed being scarcely durable enough to supplant board covers.

Take a sheet of buff blotting paper and cut two pieces a trifle larger than the book it is to cover. Bind both ends and one side with brown ribbon that "shades in" with the paper, pasting it on with powdered gum tragacanth dissolved in a little cinnamon water. Cut two pieces of ribbon a fraction longer than the covers, turning down and pasting the ends to prevent fraying. Gum the unbound edges and lay on one ribbon, let it dry, then paste the other ribbon directly over the first. A sketch in sepia of a pretty spot described, a f :vorite passage quoted or "Old Friends Are Best Friends" on the cover will give with daisy ribbon tied in the end rings pleasure to the owner of the treasured volume.

A dress album is now the popular I saw a most interesting one lately, one that had been kept for years -long before they became fashionable The owner is a young bookkeeper, with and overcasting the onter edges. Make an artistic faculty, who is always exquisitely dressed on a most moderate

Her album contains screps of nearly every gown she has worn, from the bag tie a long looped bow, folding it dainty baby dresses to her latest tailor

"My grandmother taught me when I Another useful and pretty trifle for a was a little thing to string pieces of my spare chamber is a shoe button basket, dresses together with thread and needle, The one illustrated is 6 inches long, 4 she said, "and I had always kept up the idea of tacking the scraps into an album came into my mind, though I had never heard of any one's doing so," and she opened a large scrap album to the first page, where are pieces of the white baby dresses, with scraps of delicate lace and embroldery.

"Of course I cannot remember these, she said. "My recollection begins with this, which was a favorite dress when a child," pointing to a pretty pink sprigged

By an odd blue and white plaid i written: "My first sllk. Eighth birtleday." Then follows an array of schoolgirl dresses, each labeled with some brief reminiscence or date. One page is given up to scraps from her wardrobe when she first went to boarding school. Under a light summer silk are the words, "First trained dress." In a pale blue wool she had her "First proposal. Declined." These slinple and preity gowns culminate in scraps of india mull and lace, which bear the momentous date of "Graduation."

The explanatory notes grow in interest after this. There are ball dressewith initials of senders of bonquets; a scrap from a riding habit with initials of escort; street and house dresses with some piquant suggestion of adventure or interesting occurrence.

The dresses for a particular season are grouped together under a heading. Summer (or winter) of 18-." Then follow the scraps with more elaborate notes Bits of the trimming accompany each gown, with brief descriptions of the style in which it is fashioned and name of

A violet strewn lawn has the simple line: "June 15, 18-. H. L. necepted." Under a soft, golden brown wool is written, Dearest of dresses, because H-

Then comes a page of mourning garments worn for the mun whose wife she was to have been, and for the father whose dearest pleasure had been the gratification of her every wish.

The dresses became less costly after this, for she had been thrown upon her own resources, like many a petted child of luxury, and by a plain blue flannel is written, "First dress I bought with money I had earned myself." The gowns begin to be made over now. A send brown wool frimmed with velvet appears on the next winter's page in combination with a harmonizing stripe, while the velvet is used as collar, cuffs and revers on a lavender cassimere tea gown; but the dresses are as tasteful and dainty as when hundreds of dollars were invested in them.

A cheviot dress dates from the first trip to the seashore; a pale green evening gown bears date of a grand reception, while here and there are noted names: "Wore this when introduced to Mrs. "This to a Sorosis dinner." "This when C. F. R. called."

There is more than one gown by which is written the initials of some unfortnnate man with the terse legend, "Rejected." "And when will you add the wedding

Letter from a Sweet Sixleener Who Replied to an Inquiry from One Who Wanted a Wife-Is She Sincere?-Nye Visits a Chiropodist.

' [Copyright, 1892, by Edgar W. Nye.] low, plaintive wail from a prune grower in Oregon who wanted a wife. He had a prime vineyard of 314 acres, and was, oh! so lonely that I took pity on him and printed the wail without loving heart, lonely and pining, sparing only to a moderate height and flying one sided for lack of some one to love, might plume its pinions for Oregon, where it and the great big, warm, bulbous heart of the prune grower could nestle together under the giant coniferous trees und tralling arbutus and prune vines of that glorious Aidenn.

Many replies came, and many throbs of real affection, showing that through the influence of the press fond hearts severed by the sad alchemy of circumstances may be soldered together. Some contained photographs-not beautiful, but earnest; not recently taken perhaps. but showing the coiffure of the time when our country was being jerked hither west and crooked by a fratricidal strife, and woman's hair seemed to have entered largely into that conflict-the days when "rats" were worn inside to give the hair a massive and rank appear-as they might if they had been wept over either before or after being returned by some one.

None of them "does justice to the writer." I quote from eleven of the letters to show how we are being imposed upon by the photographer. All say "the artist has been very grossly unjust to me in the picture he has made." Why do women so often say that? Also why do they pile up maledictions on the brow of the photographer because the baby looked like a typhoid idiot at the moment the picture was taken? I do not know. With all the great big crop of things I know, and the overproduction of last year still on hand, I do not know

Possibly it is for the same reason that a man tries to peer into the dark and ill smelling barrel of a gun, and no man has ever returned to tell us why he did that. He just sits up there on the lambrequin of a violet tinted cloud faced with shrimp pink—the cloud, I mean; not the man-and with a knowing look as he puts a new E string in his harp he says, 'Find out for yourself like I done." But, seriously, why should we look into the barrel of a gun when we know we cannot see unything?

I give one reply from Baltimore, with photograph, partly because 1 have mislaid the address of the prime grower, and hope he may see this and take courage. Notice that her countenance changes with every emotion, which is a good thing, especially in her case:

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30. MY DEAR Mn. NYE-After rending your letter of Sunday, asking for a wife for the princ grower, think perhaps I may be eligible. Inclosed you will find my photograph.

I think I may with all modesty assert that it by no means does me justice, so please make allowances for my complexion, which is strictly of pre-Raphaelite tints. My bair, 100, cannot be judged, as 13 is Potteresque in line. My ex-pression changes with every emotion. The look of agony is not due to a broken heart or ins-placed affections, merely to the relic of barbarism with which the photographer lucased my ead. You may add to the P. G. that this deborate costuming is not habitual. When the photo, was made had on idea of going on he stage to elevate society and scandalize the dage. Since giving up that deterndantlon ave relapsed Into elegant simplicity. If the P. G. demands a pedigree, can trace mine lack to the reign of Pharlamange. Besides luherning a podigree, have an aidique gold buckle set with emethysi, a set of pearly and two silver spoons, besides a silver soquentr spoon donated ly a friend of the family. Am scarcely old enough to marry, being just sixteen.

Please reply at once, with photo, of your friend. I would not risk an ngly man, for I fear my beauty is not quite sufficient to take as in the Four Hundred.

Another stipulation: Should like the marriage to take place at once, and most go on a tour. Suppose you would not object to having us spend our honeymoon with you and Mrs.

You may also add that my accomplishments are many and varied, and shall not demand reciprocacy. (Probably reciprocity is intended Quien sabe?) With regards to you and Mrs. Nye (as I do not want to make any woman jealous), and begging the favor of an early reply, am sincerely yours. ANNA ROBERTA DE LESTRIE. The question now arises in my mind,

Ought I to unite two people like these or be even in any way instrumental perhaps in the union of two lives that may be the origin of a race which in future years will have to be protected by the game laws of Oregon? Far be it from me to criticise or even opine slightingly of one who has been born plain, and who has udded to it in born plain, and who has udded to it in after years $150 six mounts. Address MUNN & CO.

changes with every emotion. We would be glad, however, to see these young hearts at our place should Some weeks ago I incautiously printed they seem to be drawn toward each other. Our latchstring is always honging outward and waving in the breeze. especially for the young. Love's young dream is not interfered with at our house.

We also try to adjust ourselves to the money and without price, so that some mental caliber of those who are our gnests. We talk brightly of art, science, literature, polities, religion or crime, and readily strike the guit of those who are under our roof. We aim to please in every way, and though we can bo as simple as Simple Simpson the Sockless we often give our guests of an evening such strong, rich mental food that they suffer all night with intellectual heartburn.

But, alas! I fear that both the letter from Oregon and that from Baltimore are merely idle attempts to enlist me in a cause in which there is no real earnestness. Somehow at night, as I look up into the quiet sky and try to count the stars through the roof and emleavor to believe that all men are good, even architects, and I ask for strength so that I may do ever what is right, no matter how disagreeable it is, and that I may never break over the rule established years ago not to do anything whatever that my mother would disapprove of, sometimes even going so far as to telegraph her before taking a glass of wine. unless I am very, very thirsty indeed-I ess approved at which tea and chocolate sometimes while I lie thus (that is, while and varied biscuits were served. This card inclosed in an enaround and take notice, and it is mighty | velope may 'e sent by post or delivered hard to get him through the second year. by messenger, as suns one's convenience.

But let us pass on. I was in New York for a week not long ago on metropolitan business-collecting some of my mearned increment -and took occasion to visit the chiropodist. He was a very busy man, and has ontside the door on the street one of those large, ghastly marble feet as a sign, and clambering over it are rank growths of bardy Indian corns, with here and there the bulb of a banion. Clasing my eyes till I got past it, I went up stairs to the ingrowing nail parlors, and was waited on by one of those polite, highly refined people who lend the conversation away so that one almost forgets that he has a hole in his sock which he had forgotten.

The day was rainy, and hastily paying my hill I put on my new gray mackintosh in the hall and went down the street to where I was going to have a two hundred dollar battle scene painted while ! waited. All the way down I met people who seemed to recognize me by my well known features, and it is indeed a comfort to know that one is known. I can see now why it is that people commit the most hideons and sickening crimes so that they may be noted and recognized. At the art works it was so too. People got through their business and still seemed reluctant about going away.

You have seen, no doubt, a sad faced man walking slowly up and down Broadway falsely laboring under the impression that he was thinking. He wears, rain or shine, a light rubber overcoat, on the back of which is the sign of a well known chiropodist and the figure of a knobby foot, with gladioluses growing Originally the 5-a'clock ten in England was the light breaking of the fast between the 2 o'clock luncheon and the 8 o'clock dinner. Society people drove in the row or pald visits in the early afternoon, and on returning felt the need of a bit of nonrshment before beginning the serious dinner tollet."

In country houses the pretext of tea and biscuits-a generic term for crackers in England-similarly assembled the household for a half hour's cozy chat before the oven fire, the ladies in loose gowns and the men in shooting jackets. In town it was the hour when the chatelaine was sure to be at home and the intimates of the family "dropped in."

Gradually its function became enlarged. The "5 o'clock" was dropped, and a "tea" became a certain day "at home" from it to 5 or 4 to 6, as the host-

In an inner room adjoining, or near that into who h the guests first enter, a small table is spread with a dainly teacloth and set out with the ten and chocolate service, or, it preferred, sluply a teaservice, which should include a kettle swung over a spirit lamp.

In a village where the guests canno: be very immerons a single tea service will suffice. At large "teas" hostesses place extra sugar bowls and erenn pitchers on small tables through the rooms. A maid is then needed to hand the cups of tea around. Usually the beverage is served in the English fashion, with crimm. Often, however, Russian tea, clear, with a slice of lemon in each cup, is offered. In either case lump sugar is indispensable.

The hostess, with her daughters, if she have any, or any friends who may be assisting, stonds just inside the parlor door to receive her friends. 'The guests are gloved and bonneted, but in cold weather a room should be ready where heavy wraps may be laid uside. All visitors dro, their cards in a tray or hasket provided for the purpose in the hall. It is not necessary to send regrets if you are not able to accept a "ten" invitation. A call afterward is, however, expected.

If you have among your list a friend who plays well or recites or sings, it is a pleasant diversion to beg her contribution to yid., "afternoon." At formal city affairs half an hour's stay is all that society women, with perhaps the necessity to show at half a dozen in an afternoon, can give. It is, however, a compliment to one's hostess to spend nearly the time designated on the eards.

Winne the workmen were digging around the handsome new house of Mr. J. W. Ramsey, on Lancaster street, they found the skull and bones of a human being. Not believing that Stanford was once a huge burying-ground, we investigated a little and found that a couple of doctors, now grown old and gray, once had an office in front of the building and that the remains were taken from their grave by them some dark and dreary night, at an hour when church-yards are supposed to yawn. The skull when 'Long Spoonawore, ' quite a noted character here in the dim and distant past.

A THERE, who seemed only desirous of getting a small amount to eat, broke through the fence of the Cothey House Tuesday night and gaining entrance into Farris & Hardin's store by the cellar, stole about 100 pounds of floor and 20 pounds of lard, at least this is all that can be missed. A barrel half full of molasses was sitting on the cellar door and how this was moved off so as to reach the store-room is a mystery. Marshal the lard and meal, or some very like that of the firm's, was found. They were lodged in jail and the trial set for yestorday, which was afterwards changed to this morning. WE are glad to note that Miss bilna Courts was not so seriously hart as the and lacerated about the face. Mrs. Courts tells us she is getting along firstrate and will soon be out. The little girl is scarred from head to foot by the various methods she resorted to in punishing her for the slightest offense. The cruelties of the Spanish Inquisition pale, when we read that boiling water was repeatedly thrown on the giri and ther. salt rubbed in the blisters it would make. A strap with a heavy buckle on its end and stuck with pins was used to beat the child, who was nearly bald from having her hair pulled out by the shedevil, while other methods as horrible and cruel kept the poor little thing always in pain. > In the bosom of Kentucky. Far from the "deep blue sea," There stands a little city, Where dwell the fair and free lt'a nota great metropolia, It's not a mush-room town. It supplies the wants of people For many miles around. It's approached by numerous turnpikes From towns both near and tar, Which were used by hostlle armics

In the late great civil war, It has hills and dales around it, Near are fields of ripening grain, Which were raised by honest toilsrs, flolped by sunshine, winds and rain. Near are woodlands, cool and shady, Near are creeks and rivers clear, Which way back in days primeval Ware the haunts of bear and decr.

t was here the gallant Logan, The hold, brave pioneer, Ruilt his little stockade. Never danger did he fear From the bloody, willy savage Who is numbers did abound, In this heart of great Kentucky-In this "dark and bloody ground." It was here his little colony Through years of weary toil,

Lived on trophies of the chase, Tilled the rich and fartile soil, They were used to savage war-cry, They were used to panther's scream, They were used to many dangers, Of which we can never dream,

There were brave mon from Virginia, Sturdy men from Teanessee, Daring man from North Carollan -Which extends out to the sen. lere they brought their wives and daughters

Here they brought their suns and all I their earthly goods and chattels-They wers brave souls, one and all. They changed this land of cane brakes

Into fields of tasseling cora, They made their little children Love the place where they were born hey raised their fainly altars

In this far-off wilderness, ar from their friends and kindred. They hoped their God would bless Their sacrificing, humble aims

Keep them from dangers nigh, Teach them to worship only llim, The Lord, the Mighty One on high. 111

But how all things are changed In this land where Logan dwelt. I then the home of progress, Here the hand of push is feit. Here the locumotives whistle With its shill and piercing sound, Wakes the dead and slumbering eclines In this once ' dark bloody ground " Here the telegraph troumpha t Stretches through the ambient sky, Teling as of things that happen

In the far and in the nigh, In the gay and wicked Paris, In the famous London town, In the islands of the ocean, In the great world all around, Telling us of wars and battles, Of per-tl-len-ceritire, felling us of great destruction By the water, by the fire felling us of strikes and murders,

Of prize fights for fame, ity those made by their Creat r l'ocaalt His mighty name. But this little city sitteth

Like a gem letween the hills; laught she cares for war and havor That betoken others' ills. She is lisre to do her duty lu the great, wille world of strife, She is here to bear her purnou Of the burdens of this life. ooking to her goodly Coun il Who have done the best they knew o deliver us from darkness, From the dangers that bestrew All the towns that now surround us, Who are walking in the dark, Walting tor the "car of progress" That shall land them in the ark,

On the very spot whera Logan And his little hand once fought Filled with strange things that were prought From the different States around us, From the East and from the West, from the North and from the Southland They have brought the very hest. llare the smoke arlses daily From the furnaces so bright, Which are woving mighty engines Through the day and through the night,

Sending to our thirsty peopla

Water from the deep blue tank, from the very spring where Lagan And his band of settlers drank.

llars they make the ice, transparent Here they start the electric spark, Here they light the Incandescant And the bright and darzling arc.

Now we're talking of great lactories, Of street car lines, and auch, Many paying enterprises We have always needed much.

And we feel the day is coming With the rising of our tide When the locomotive's whistle Will resound on every side; When our streets and marts will echo With the steady, solld tread Of a thousand skilled mechanics, Who'll be earning daily bread; for we know with our sprroundings, We're in shape to 'maka things hum," Wa are building numerous houses For the "workars" who will come. We will give them royal welcome And the best that's in the land, And we'll promise in their troubles That 'z'll tend a halping hand.

Thus this quiet little city, That for years has slumbered on ls now waking from her slumbers, To a bright and glorious morn. Would that gallant old Ben Logan, And his band of ploneers. buld coma back some day and see ua What we've done in later years, llow we'd make their eyes atand open As we told of wonders wrought

On the very apot made lamous

By the battles they had fought, V11. \ Just within a rifle shot Of the tort where heroes bled Is a sail and sacred place-It's the "city of our dead," liere asleep are many dear ones, Laid to rast by loving handa Whom we hope to meet "some sweet day," In the "far-off Beulah Land," Hoping when "lifa's fitful faver" And Its troubles all ara o'er, We shall clasp their hands rejoicing, "On the bright eternal shore."

So we've sung our song of Stanford, And we hope the years will bring To our brave and kindly people, Many a good and useful thing That will bless and make then happy Through the ages yet to come, And "we'll praise the god that made us" "In the old Kentucky home." Stanford, Ky., Sept 15, 1890.

The laws of health are taught in the schools, but not in a way to be of much practical benefit and are never illustrated by living examples, which in many cases night anally be done. If nome scholar who has just contracted a cold was brought before the school so that all could hear the dry, loud cough and know lie significance, see the thin, white coating on the tongue, and later, as the cold descloped, see the profuse watery expectoration and thin watery discharge from the nose, not one of them would ever forget what the first symptums of a cold ware. The scholar should then be given Chamberlain's Cough Remady treaty, that all might see that even a severe cold could be cured in one or two days, or at least greatly miltigated, whim preperly treated as soon as the first cure illn one or two days, or at least greatly mitigated, whim preperly treated as seen as the first symptoms appear. This remady is famula for its cures of coughs, colds and croup.
